

Instructional Leadership Basics for Building and District Administrators

Instructional leadership is by far the most important skill for leaders today. Paraphrased from Kristen Anderson

The new state standards and learning objectives demand more rigorous instruction to meet achievement targets than ever before. If students are to reach these goals, educational leaders must have a working knowledge and practical mastery of researched effective areas of instructional leadership.

This workshop will provide participants with an overview of the five Focus Components of instructional leadership:

- General knowledge and understanding of curriculum and assessment and the connection of both
- Issues related to effective instruction and instructional strategies
- Instructional evaluation, both summative and formative
- Data analysis and discussion that leads to instructional change
- Ability to give and receive effective feedback that targets improvement and direction for positive change

Come and join your colleagues for a day of learning and discussion about what educational leaders are needing today.

SMCAA Headquarters - Jefferson City